Dayton, OH – 2025 – Beginning in April, Dayton travelers will have expanded flight services to Chicago. The Dayton International Airport and American Airlines are excited to announce the introduction of dual-class regional jet service between Dayton International Airport (DAY) and Chicago O’Hare International (ORD). This enhancement in service marks a significant upgrade for customers and provides enhanced air services and broader product offerings to our valued market.

American Airlines' decision to introduce dual class flights reflects their confidence in the Dayton market and their dedication to delivering a seamless and enhanced customer experience. Travelers from Dayton can now enjoy the comfort and convenience of upgraded aircraft, with expanded seating options and superior in-flight amenities whether flying to, from, or beyond Chicago.

“American looks forward to adding dual-class service between Dayton and our Chicago O’Hare hub,” said Jordan Pack, American’s Director of Domestic Network Planning. “We are pleased to offer travelers more ways to customize their experience as they travel with American to ORD and beyond.”

"We are thrilled to announce this new expanded flight service option to Chicago, which represents a significant step forward in our partnership with American Airlines," said Gil Turner, director of aviation at the Dayton International Airport. "American Airlines has been a valuable partner to the Dayton Airport, and we are proud to continue our collaboration as we expand flight service options at DAY and enhance our offerings to meet the needs of our growing passenger base."

This new expanded service option will not only improve connectivity between Dayton and Chicago but also provide more options and flexibility for travelers. Dayton International Airport is committed to growing its network and ensuring that passengers have access to a wide range of destinations with the highest level of comfort and convenience.
